Why Didn't I Learn This in College?

This course will focus on the following essential questions:

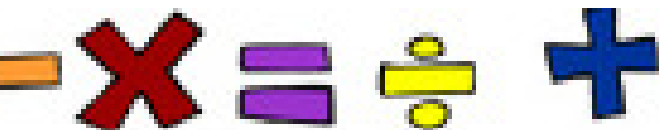

- What is a learning-centered classroom and what do I need to do to create and lead in such an environment?
- How do I translate "beginning with the end in mind" into planning and pacing for the year, the unit, the lesson?
- What are the systems for organizing myself, the learners and the learning environment?

May 27-30	8 am - 3:30 pm
	(8 am - noon on the 30th)
Nov. 5	4 pm - 6:30 pm

Credit will not be awarded until after the fall follow-up.

Target Group: K-12 novice teachers with 0-3 years experience
Course fee: $30
Credit: 2 semester hours professional development and salary credit to be awarded after the follow-up
Location: Learning Services Center, Timberline Room

Systems for Classroom Management in the 21st Century

Beyond $x = y$: Developing an Engaging Mathematics Classroom

Do you ever have students who are not being reached in your math classroom? Do you have students who seem to be complying, but only in order to make the grade? Would you like to inspire more students to be genuinely involved in their learning of mathematics?

Participants will learn some best practices for teaching mathematics. Included in the class is time for personal research on what works.

August 3 - 7 8 am - 3:30 pm

Plus two 2.5 hour evening follow-ups in the fall, dates to be determined by the class

Target Group: Secondary math teachers

Course fee: $30

Credit: 2.5 semester hours of professional development and salary credit

Location: Silver Creek HS

Engaged students, classrooms that seem to run themselves, seamless transitions - these are the goals of teachers who want to focus on effective, standards-based instruction. Research to date shows us that when strong management systems are in place, teaching and learning occurs. This class focuses on four areas of classroom management: classroom organization, rules and procedures, "with-it-ness", and building teacher/student relationships. On-the-spot interventions for current problems will also be offered.

"The most important factor affecting student learning is the teacher."

-Robert J. Marzano

July 31	8 am - Noon

Credit: 1 semester hour of professional development and salary credit

Location: Learning Services Center,
Timberline Room

Registering for a SVVSD Class for the First Time

If you have never taken a class through SVVSD before, you will need to create a new account. Go to stvrainopd.org. Under Courses choose Catalogs and Registration. Follow the directions to create a new account. { Tip: Use your log-on ID as your password also. You won't forget it then.)

Problems that might come up during the year:

You forget your password. On the log-on page, arrow down and click on "Forgot Your Password?" It will ask for an e-mail address to send it to.

You enter your e-mail address for your password to be sent, but it informs you that it is not found in the system. This is probably because the e-mail address you originally entered in your personal information was your home one. Request that your password be sent to your home computer instead of your school one. Then, once you can log-on, be sure to change the e-mail address to your school one.

Another possibility is that you may have a typo in your e-mail address, the address has changed, or you did not enter an e-mail address. You will need to e-mail Jean Jennings for help.

You can no longer attend a class you are registered in. You can only un-register yourself from classes that have no charge. You will need to e-mail Jean Jennings if you wish to un-register from a class that you have paid for. You must cancel out of a class by the deadline in order to receive a refund. There is a $2.50 cancellation fee. There will be no exceptions to this.

Things that are nice to know:

- The system will not let you register for a class if you are past the deadline. It also will not let you register for a class which conflicts with one you are already registered in.
- The system will indicate when a class is closed. You may still register for it and be put on a waiting list at no charge. However, if you end up getting into the class, you will then need to send a check to the OPD.
- You can't go back online to see the dates or location of your class once it has passed the deadline to register. It's best to keep your confirmation with that information on it.
- You may view your transcript from the log-on page by clicking on View Transcript. It will not only show classes completed, but also what you are registered for.
- If a class is showing "Incomplete" on your transcript, this simply means that the credit has not been processed yet, not that you still need to do something.
- You are required to pay for a class when you register. If you wish to pay with a check or cash you must come into the OPD located in the Learning Services Center.
